

Chapter 7 Waylen, Do You Know Her

Rena went home dejectedly.

Seeing her arrive, Eloise stopped what she was doing and looked at her hopefully.

Pale-faced and still sopping wet, Rena shook her head in defeat.

Eloise's face fell in disappointment. Her first reaction was to blame Rena, but she gave up in the end. She only said, "Your clothes are wet. Go take a shower, or you might end up catching a cold."

Rena nodded quietly.

She took a shower and then took some medicine as a precaution, but in the end, she still caught a cold.

At midnight, Vera called Rena excitedly, anxious to hear the result.

Rena told her everything in a hoarse voice, coughing from time to time.

Vera was stunned. "What? You guys kissed but he ended up leaving you? Rena, do you think he's... unwell?"

Rena shook her head. "No, I think he's normal."

Vera sighed in relief. "Well, as long as he's a healthy, normal guy, I'm sure you'll be able to seduce him." 3

Rena smiled bitterly.

She knew clearly that Waylen wasn't one to fall for tactics of seduction so easily.

After chatting with Vera for a little while longer, she said goodnight and went back to sleep. When she woke up, it was already noon of the next day. Since Eloise wasn't home, the house was quiet.

Rena felt even worse today. She took her temperature and found that she had a high fever.

She dragged herself out of bed, ate something, and then took a taxi to the hospital.

Unfortunately, the hospital was crowded. Over an hour later, it was finally her turn to see the doctor. After a quick assessment, the doctor asked the nurse to give her an IV drip.

It was already three o'clock in the afternoon by the time Rena was put on a drip.

She was exhausted and soon fell asleep, leaning against the chair.

It just so happened that Waylen had accompanied his mother to the hospital to get her medication today. Just as they were about to leave, he happened to see a familiar figure in the transfusion room. <sup>3</sup>

It was Rena, who had fallen asleep in her chair.

With a needle protruding out of the back of her hand, she looked very fragile and vulnerable.

Waylen found that he couldn't tear his eyes away from her.

Following her son's gaze, Juliette Fowler asked in surprise, "Waylen, do you know this lady?"

Waylen said gruffly, "I met her once."

"When I was in line for registration, I found that the process was a lot more complicated than before. It was this lady who was kind enough to help me out. What a small world!"

Waylen nodded silently and looked at Rena again.

The latter had just woken up.

When she saw Waylen, she forgot that she was hooked onto an IV and stood up in a hurry. The transparent infusion tube immediately turned red as blood was drawn out due to her sudden movement. Frowning, Rena sat down quickly.

Waylen pursed his lips.

Juliette had grown fond of Rena thanks to their brief interaction. She said to her son, "Why don't you stay and keep this poor lady company for a while? She's obviously sick, but she's here alone. How pitiful!" <sup>2</sup>

Waylen didn't want to, but when he met his mother's determined eyes, he had no choice but to obey.

Rena was so stunned that it didn't occur to her to refuse Juliette's offer.

Waylen first escorted his mother to the parking lot. The driver had been waiting for them for a long time.

After getting in the car, Juliette couldn't help but say, "Waylen, that girl in the infusion room just now—I like her! You'll be 30 in two years. I hope you'll get married before then. You know what I mean,

right?" 2

With his hands in his pockets, Waylen smiled faintly.

If only his mother knew that Rena was Harold's ex-girlfriend. Would she still want to make a match between him and Rena?

But he decided against telling her and just nodded casually.

Seeing that she couldn't force him, Juliette sighed.

After sending his mother off, Waylen returned to the transfusion room where Rena was sitting in a daze.

He admitted that he found her pretty, and he especially liked her long, straight, slender legs. Whenever he saw her supple thighs, he'd get turned on instantly. 6

But that was all.

He just wanted to have sex with her, not build a life with her.

Waylen sat beside Rena and asked coldly, "How long will it take to finish the infusion?"

Rena wasn't expecting that he'd actually come back, so when he asked her this, she didn't dare to offend him and answered honestly. "Not long.

There's only one more bag left."

Waylen didn't say anything more. He simply lowered his head and started dealing with work from his phone.

A hush fell over the transfusion room. Rena couldn't find an excuse to talk to Waylen, so she just closed her eyes and soon dozed off.

Just as she was swimming in and out of her consciousness, she vaguely felt someone drape a coat over her lap and she also seemed to hear Waylen talking to a nurse. 8
