Chapter 36

Olivia stepped forward to help Ella up. She knew it was another good opportunity to show filial piety. With teary eyes, she hugged Ella and said, "Mom, it's Okay. Even if Gina treated you unwell, you still have me."

Ella felt a hint of comfort and embraced Olivia back.

"My dear daughter, Ella said.

Olivia choked up and said, "Mom, brother, I just texted Miss Bush about what happened to Gina at school. I didn't want to inform Miss Bush, but Gina actually hit you. I couldn't bear it anymore."

Ella felt warmed by this and thought, When Olivia was bullied by that wretched woman, she never thought of revenge. But when I was hit, she immediately helped me. She's truly my good daughter!

After Olivia vented her indignation, she began to feign concern again. I wonder what the Bush family will do to Gina..."

Olivia felt excited to think, 'It would be best to just kill her.

"She caused trouble, so she should bear the consequences. Olivia, you're just too soft-hearted. What does she have to do with the Miller family?" Noah said fiercely.

Gina was preparing to leave Trowell University when her phone vibrated and saw Gabriel had sent her dozens of messages.

She thought she had already replied.

She opened the messages, which were all about what he did at work today, with every detail reported.

It was like he was filing a report.

Gabriel: [And you? What are you doing? Why haven't you replied for so long? Miss you.]

This was his last message.

Gina was about to type a reply when a person suddenly appeared in front of her.

Reacting quickly, she dodged the hand that came at her.

Jasmine was surprised and thought, "How could this bitch react so fast? Wasn't she just staring at her phone?"

Gina lifted her eyes coldly and glanced at Jasmine.

Jasmine found Gina so quickly. Someone from the Miller family must have informed Jasmine.

Jasmine angrily exclaimed, "You bitch. I finally got you."

Before she finished speaking, she noticed the white bracelet on Cina's wrist.

Her heart skipped a beat. She had seen Emily wear it before she passed away. Emily had said it was meant to be passed down to the future Mrs. Jackson.

Why did the bitch get the bracelet? Jasmine thought.

to she asked, "Where did the bracelet come from?"

asmine's attention shifted instantly.

Gina looked at Jasmine coldly and replied, "What's it to you?"

asmine thought, 'It couldn't possibly be a gift from Neil, could it? Impossible!"

asmine couldn't accept this. She was consumed by jealousy and disregarded her image, shouting, "You must have stolen it. 'm calling the police."

Trembling, she called the police, and soon the police arrived. Gina cooperated by going to the police station.

She definitely stole this bracelet. It's expensive!" Jasmine glared at Gina fiercely and continued, "Just wait to go to jail."

he had already called Neil, who rushed to the police station.

Seeing Neil, Jasmine warmly welcomed him.

But Neil's gaze fell on Gina first. He asked, "Gina, what's going on?"

asmine told him on the phone that she caught a thief who stole valuable items from the Jackson family, named Gina.

Neil was stunned and rushed over immediately.

Hearing Neil call Gina so affectionately, Jasmine felt like exploding.

Neil had never called her name so affectionately before.

But she had grown up under Neil's care.

Gina politely greeted Neil and said, "Thank you for coming."

She raised her hand to show Neil the bracelet on her wrist.

Neil explained to the police, "Sir, this bracelet was a gift from me to Gina. She didn't steal it. It's a misunderstanding."

The police officer awkwardly smiled, "Miss Bush, make sure you understand the situation before calling the police next time."

Humiliation overwhelmed Jasmine.

Jasmine was embarrassed. Even worse was the fact that the bracelet was indeed a gift from Neil to Gina.

Jasmine couldn't contain her anger and said, 'Neil, how could you give such a valuable bracelet to her?"

Neil's expression darkened. "So what if I gave it to her? Do I need your approval to give gifts to someone?"

Jasmine realized her mistake and said, "That's not what I meant."

Gina spoke coldly to Jasmine, "Miss Bush, stop stirring up trouble. Last time at the Quaria store, you bumped into me and refused to apologize. You were in the wrong, so don't think about causing trouble anymore."

Neil frowned, suddenly understanding that Jasmine deliberately picked on Gina.

"Jasmine, apologize to Gina," said Neil.

Jasmine hadn't expected things to escalate like this. She held back her tears, not wanting to leave a bad impression on Neil.

Jasmine thought. This bitch must have deliberately brought up the incident at the Quaria store. I couldn't let Neil be disappointed in me.

“Gina. I’m sorry,” Jasmine said.

After saying that, Jasmine couldn’t hold back her grievances and ran out crying.

Neil glanced at Jasmine’s back and sighed. “She’s spoiled by her family. Gina, don’t worry, I’ll talk with her grandfather and make sure they discipline her.”

“No need” Gina refused. If Jasmine provoked her again, she would deal with it herself. She didn’t want to bother Neil.

Gina exchanged a few words with Neil and then left.

On her way back to the apartment, Gina received a call from Michael.

“Gina, I have some progress on investigating the car accident Olivia had encountered. The surveillance footage of the accident has been damaged.”

Olivia wasn’t dead and destroyed the surveillance.

Gina lowered her eyelids and said, “Send me the damaged surveillance footage.”

“Okay,” Michael said.

Repairing it wouldn’t be a problem for Gina.

Olivia had dumped such a big blame on her for the accident. Gina couldn’t just sit back and do nothing

This was just the first step in exposing Olivia’s hypocrisy.

Cutting ties with the Miller family didn’t mean she would allow Olivia to live in peace.

After finishing the call with Michael, Gina remembered she hadn’t replied to Gabriel’s messages.

She replied: [Dealing with some trivial matters.]

Gabriel saw Gina’s reply and finally relaxed his furrowed brows. “Are you available tomorrow? I want to see you.”

They said she was nothing...Gina Miller was found by her biological family when she was nineteen. She had expected a grand reunion and being showered by love. Chapter 37

Gina: [I’m busy, got something to do.]

Gabriel: [What’s the matter?]

Gina: [I need to visit Vaprebara Church.]

Vaprebara Church was a famous church in Wrinster, where many people go to pray for their family and loved ones, believing it to be very efficacious,

However, Gina didn’t believe in such things.

But Ella believed deeply.

Gina remembered when she first returned to the Miller family, Ella wasn't so biased and hostile towards her until she returned from a visit to Vaprebara Church, after which Ella's attitude turned extremely hostile, often referring to her as a 'disaster.'

She had Michael investigate and found out that Ella met a master named Peter Lennon in the church, and Peter performed a divination for Ella. Whatever was said during the divination made Ella start resenting Gina.

Gina watched the surveillance footage from that day in the church.

On the same day. Olivia also appeared in the church.

After meeting Olivia, Peter went to see Ella.

There must be some shady dealings between Peter and Olivia.

Olivia had been plotting against Gina since Gina's first return to the Miller family.

Gabriel: [Going to pray? Pray for whom?]

Gina: [No, it's something else.]

Gabriel: [Okay, understood.]

Feeling there was nothing else, Gina stopped replying.

Gabriel put down his phone, thoughtful. Then he instructed David, "Push all tomorrow's work back. I'm going to visit Vaprebara Church."

David was puzzled, "Mr. Jackson, are you planning to visit Miss Miller? Why didn't you just go with her?"

"I want to surprise her by creating an unexpected encounter, Gabriel said.

David thought, "An unexpected encounter? It's already planned.

In the Bush family, Jasmine cried as if she had suffered a great grievance, her eyes swollen.

Hannah had been comforting her. "Sweetie, don't cry."

Tue, 21 May MG.

Chapter 37

"Mom, what should I do? There's a fox by Gabriel's side, and it seems like Neil quite likes her

When Jasmine returned home, she suddenly felt a sense of familiarity with the woman she had seen around Gabriel on social media.

She thought about it and realized that it was Gina.

She had been in love with Gabriel for so many years and didn't even have Gabriel's contact information. And yet Gina dined with Gabriel at a high-end restaurant.

'Gina isn't worthy of it. Jasmine thought.

Seeing her daughter so upset, Hannah was also furious. "Sweetie, Gabriel must have been momentarily fooled by that fox. He doesn't genuinely care for her. He's just playing around. It's normal for a successful man like him to be a bit flirtatious. Besides, it proves that Gabriel doesn't dislike women, right?"

Due to Gabriel never having any women around him, there were rumors that Gabriel might be gay.

In terms of family background and appearance, where can she compare to you? She'll never marry into the Jackson family." Hannah said, ruthlessly belittling Gina.

Jasmine choked up and said. "But Neil even gave the diamond bracelet to Gina."

Hannah was startled to hear that.

But to comfort her daughter, she forcibly rationalized and said, "She must have used some means to temporarily deceive Neil Sweetie, now you need to make an effort to impress Neil, let him know you're the most suitable candidate for being Mrs. Jackson 'Mom makes sense. Gina is nowhere near my level. I will surely surpass her, Jasmine thought, calming down a bit.

Jasmine settled her mood and thought about how to impress Neil.

Jasmine thought, Right, Neil isn't very healthy. I have to make some tonic for him.

The next day, Gina arrived at Vaprebara Church.

She asked a staff member, "May I know where Mr. Lennon is?"

The staff member replied, "Miss, you need an appointment to see Mr. Lennon,"

"Where is he?" Gina repeated.

The staff member felt intimidated by Gina's cold demeanor and nervously said, "He's in the attic of Blessing Tower, Miss, you can't see Mr. Lennon without an appointment."

'I can't see him? There's money to be made. He'll come to me himself, Gina thought, not bothering to let the staff member finish, and went to Blessing Tower.

long line at the

There was a long line at the bottom of Blessing Tower, all waiting for Peter to divine for them.

Gina walked straight to the front of the line but was stopped by a security guard. The guard blocked her path and said, "You need to line up."

Tue, 21 May

Chapter 37

Hearing that, the people in line were somewhat dissatisfied.

"The young person doesn't have any manners. She's cutting in line, someone murmured.

"Go to the back of the line. Don't you understand first come, first served?" another said.

Gina turned around and addressed them, "No need to line up and don't waste your money looking for this shameless scammer. Moreover, it's better to rely on oneself than on others."

The crowd looked at each other. They had heard that Peter's divination was very efficacious, and they had come here to seek blessings and fortune. They would rather believe that it existed than not.

They didn't expect Gina to be so disrespectful to Peter.

Someone spoke up for Peter and said, "Don't slander Mr. Lennon."

"Are you here to cause trouble? I'll call the police," another said.

Many people started to denounce Gina.

A commotion quickly broke out at the bottom of Blessing Tower.

The commotion alerted Peter, and he came down from the attic. He wore a white robe and had long whiskers, giving him a somewhat ethereal and wise appearance.

"Everyone, calm down. What's all this noise about?" Peter waved his hand, gesturing for everyone to quiet down.

When Peter appeared, Gina faintly smiled. Her goal had been achieved. To argue with passersby and disrupt the scene was just to lure this scammer out.

"Mr. Lennon, this woman is cutting in line and slandering you, saying you're a fraud.

We're arguing with her," someone in the crowd explained.

"That's right."

"I was just trying to remind you all not to waste your money, Gina said lightly.
"Where did this brat come from? How dare she try to ruin my business, Peter cursed Gina in his heart but maintained a kind expression on his face.

They said she was nothing...Gina Miller was found by her biological family when she was nineteen. She had expected a grand reunion and being showered by love. Chapter 38

"Everyone, quiet down." Peter waved his hand, gesturing for everyone to be quiet. But some people still grumbled, "Who is this ignorant woman? Coming here to cause trouble, isn't she afraid of ruining her fortune?"

Gina smiled indifferently. If the fortune-tellers were so efficacious, everyone could be successful.

She didn't believe in fate, only in herself.

Gina casually remarked, "You're all rushing to give him money, just to make his mansion bigger in the wealthy district."

As soon as she said this, everyone fell silent. Someone asked, "Mr. Lennon, didn't you say that most of the income is used for church operations and renovations?"

"Of course, only a portion is left for myself. Don't believe her," Peter hastily explained. Everyone believed Peter.

Peter began to feel anxious and thought, 'Did she actually know something?'

He remained calm and said, "Miss, please don't cause trouble. Let's discuss any issues privately."

Gina knew he was scared.

Gina replied with a faint smile, "Sure,"

Peter led Gina to a room, his face immediately darkening.

"What do you want? If you're here to cause trouble intentionally, don't dream. I know many wealthy and influential people. With just one phone call, I can have them deal with you. Watch your words," Peter said aggressively.

Gina remained unfazed and said, "Know many wealthy people? Like Olivia from the Miller family?"

Peter snorted, "You know. That's enough."

But Peter thought, "Wait, how did she know all this?"

He felt uneasy and asked, "Who are you?"

“Who am I? You probably don’t remember because you have done too many shameful things. But because of your ‘disaster’ comment, I’ve suffered a lot of ridicule and humiliation. So, how should we settle this score?” Gina’s clear eyes narrowed dangerously as she said.

Peter thought, ‘Disaster, the Miller family... She is Gina.

Peter quickly regained his composure but showed some disdain, saying, “So you’re the neglected daughter of the Miller family. You’re just resentful, wanting to settle scores with me, right? What can you do to me? Huh? Dare to hit me?”

Peter, being older, started to rely on his age. “Try hitting me, and I’ll make you bankrupt with one phone call,” he said.

“That depends on whether you have the ability,” Gina replied casually.

Chapter 38

Peter sneered, “I advise you not to overestimate yourself.”

Gina didn’t bother with his nonsense. She took out a ledger from her canvas bag and said, “This is evidence of your embezzling renovation fees from Vaprebara Church over the years. And also, you advise others on morality while frequenting questionable places, as well as accepting money for favors and speaking one way to some and another to others.

Peter widened his eyes and found it incredulous. He snatched the ledger from Gina’s hands and grew increasingly anxious as he read, realizing the seriousness of his situation. “Where did you get these things?” he asked.

“Do I need to report to you how I got them?” Gina’s expression turned cold, and in an instant, Peter felt intense pressure from her.

Peter gritted his teeth, feeling nervous. He thought about tearing up the ledger.

Gina sneered. I have a backup.”

Being seen through by her made Peter feel embarrassed. He thought, ‘She has some skills. I couldn’t confront her directly!

“What do you want? Money? How much money will it take for you to mind your own business?” Peter asked.

If Gina exposed all his secrets, he wouldn’t be able to continue his livelihood as a fortune teller, not to mention the damage to his reputation and status.

“I don’t need your dirty money, Gina sneered.

Besides, what she least lacked was money.

Then what do you want?” Peter grew impatient.

“I want you to expose how Olivia bribed you and how you manipulated things in front of Ella,” Gina said casually.

‘So, it was a family dispute that brought her to me, Peter thought.

But Peter didn’t want to get involved. If he exposed Olivia, it would also expose him as a fraud.

But if he didn’t go, Gina definitely wouldn’t let it go. Grinding his teeth, Peter said, “I can expose Olivia, but you have to guarantee that I can walk away unscathed. Let your family deal with the commotion, but don’t involve me.”

Gina smiled contemptuously and said, “Are you negotiating with me? Do you have the qualifications to negotiate with me?”

Gina's gaze became as sharp as a blade.

"She's too arrogant, Peter thought.

"What do you mean? Even if I do as you say, you'll still expose my private affairs, won't you?" Peter asked through gritted teeth

"Yes," Gina replied nonchalantly.

"Why?" Peter didn't understand.

"Because I don't like you, a said with a half-smile.

Peter was p i s s e d off and pointed at Gin, wanting to curse, but couldn't find the words.

Tue, 21 May MG.

Chapter 38

"Or, you can go explain to your followers now, apologize, and repent. Then you won't have to worry," Gina kindly suggested.

Peter naturally wouldn't do something that would ruin his reputation.

Taking back the ledger, Gina said, "Then let me help you."

After speaking. Gina walked out of the room. Peter stared at the canvas bag Gina carried, not knowing what was inside, but he was certain Gina was going to publicly expose him now, and he couldn't sit still.

"Stop, stop right there." Peter hurriedly followed, extending his hand in a desperate attempt to grab Gina's hair, but Gina reacted quickly, dodging his hand.

Peter resorted to acting shamelessly, falling to the ground and not getting up. He grinned maliciously at Gina, "You're finished."

He started acting and shouted. "Ouch, my head, it hurts so much..."

Peter heard footsteps approaching and shouted for help, Help, help. She's attacking me."

The footsteps drew nearer, and Peter became even more smug. There were surveillance cameras here. If they recorded Gina hitting him and with a witness, he could definitely make Gina pay a hefty price. That would be the cost of provoking him. The footsteps paused beside him, and Peter immediately looked up and said, "Kind man, please help me..."

They said she was nothing...Gina Miller was found by her biological family when she was nineteen. She had expected a grand reunion and being showered by love. Chapter 39

Peter raised his head, only to be met with the dark soles of the shoes.

Before he could even see who it was, he was knocked askew by a foot.

Just as Peter was about to curse, he struggled to look up and recognized who it was.

It was Gabriel, the head of the Jackson Group.

Peter looked at Gabriel's sullen expression, feeling a bit weak in the knees. He meekly allowed Gabriel to step on him and forced a smile, asking. "Mr. Jackson, is there something I can help you with?"

Gabriel, with a cold face, said. "Why are you lying on the ground? You almost tripped me."

Peter's smile stiffened on his face as he said, "Sorry for blocking your way, Mr. Jackson, I'll get up right away."

"Can you still get up? Do you need someone to help you?" Gabriel asked.

"Yes," Peter answered in a trembling voice.

Gabriel moved his foot away, leaving a clear shoeprint on Peter's face, which looked ridiculous.

Peter got up trembling.

When Gabriel looked at Gina, his expression softened, and there was even a smile in his deep and cold eyes.

"Gina, what a coincidence."

Gina didn't know why he was here, but she still cooperated and said, "Truly a coincidence."

If she hadn't told Gabriel on the phone yesterday that she was coming to Vaprebara Church, he wouldn't be here.

"What happened!" Gabriel asked.

His gaze turned cold as it fell on Peter, indicating that he wanted Peter to explain.

Peter's heart pounded. He hadn't expected Gina to know Gabriel, the all-powerful figure in Wrinster.

Just a moment ago, he had been disrespectful to Gina, even considering laying hands on her.

Peter was done for.

Peter's lips trembled slightly as he said, "The lady asked me to admit my mistakes to those I deceived. I'll go now and tell them that I'm just a fraudster who cheats people, and I'll give them their money back."

Gina raised an eyebrow faintly and said, "I didn't expect you to be so cooperative, Mr. Lennon. So, will you handle exposing your own affairs, or should I take care of it?"

She handed all the evidence from the canvas bag to Peter.

Peter's smile was more like a cry. He felt that both Gina and Gabriel spoke with such sinister undertones.

He took the evidence from Gina's hand and said, "Okay, Miss Miller, rest assured. I'll take care of what you instructed."

Chapter 39

Gina crossed her hands in front of her and said, "Good, then go and do it quickly. I'm running out of patience and want to see results as soon as possible.

“Yes.” Peter didn’t even bother to wipe the shoe print off his face and hurried towards Blessing Tower.

Gina remained indifferent as ever. She asked Gabriel, “Why didn’t you ask me first? Why intervene against him? Maybe I’m bullying him?”

“You wouldn’t. You must have your reasons for targeting someone, and I know you, Gina. You’re kind-hearted and wouldn’t target someone without a reason.” Gabriel chose to unconditionally stand by her side.

Gina only saw Olivia being favored by Ella and her six brothers, and she had never met someone who would support her like this.

Now, hearing Gabriel’s words, Gina felt a strange emotion.

Gina came to her senses and asked, “What if I’m a bully?”

Gabriel’s gaze was firm and resolute as he said, “Then I’ll still be by your side. Do you need a helper? How about I be your assistant?”

Hearing that, Gina smiled sincerely, “Would it be expensive to hire you?”

“It’s free”

Gabriel paused for a moment, then added, “But only for you.”

For some reason, Gina’s cheeks felt hot, and she felt a strange sensation in her heart. She had never felt this way before.

“Are you leaving? Shall I accompany you home?” Gabriel asked.

Gina shook her head and said, “I still need Peter’s help with something. I have to wait for him to deal with his own mess.”

“Then may I accompany you for a stroll!”

“Sure.” Gina agreed.

Gabriel walked alongside her. This time, Gina felt that she didn’t mind Gabriel’s proximity as much. In fact, she felt relaxed and at ease.

There were still many fortune-telling booths in the church.

Gina watched the people lining up to have their fortunes told and light incense. She asked Gabriel, “Do you believe in this stuff?”

Gabriel shook his head and replied, “No.”

If there were truly mysterious forces, then when he was in danger, someone should be coming to save him from peril.

His gaze softened as it fell on Gina.

“It’s better to rely on oneself, Gabriel said.

Chapter 39

Gina was somewhat surprised. It seemed that some of her beliefs were quite compatible with Gabriel’s.

They walked past a fortune-telling booth.

The fortune-teller warmly said. “Sir, Miss, would you like to have your marriage fortune told?”

Gina was not interested at all and was about to leave.

“You two really make a perfect match, Why not give it a try?”

The words “perfect match made Gabriel pause. “How much for a reading?” he asked.

40 dollars, the fortune-teller said.

Gina was confused.

Didn't he say he didn't believe in this!

"What are you doing?" Gina was puzzled.

Just for fun."

There was a faint smile on Gabriel's lips.

He took Gina's hand and said to the fortune-teller, "Tell us about our marriage fortune."

Gina was stunned.

They had no relationship at all.

But Gina didn't find it annoying when Gabriel held her hand.

"Alright. The fortune-teller happily agreed.

And so, he began his process, first asking Gabriel and Gina to show him their palms and then moving his fingers skillfully.

It seemed quite authentic.

The fortune-teller stroked his beard and said, "I didn't make a mistake. You two are truly meant to be together. Your marriage is destined, and you will be happy. Although there may be some obstacles in your relationship, you two will overcome them and live happily ever after."

Gina didn't take the fortune-teller's words seriously at all.

She glanced at Gabriel.

Gabriel's eyes were smiling, and he unconsciously tightened his grip on her hand.

He seemed to be in a good mood.

Gabriel then took out 400 dollars and gave it to the fortune-teller.

The fortune-teller's eyes widened and asked, "What does this mean, sir?"

"Continue."

They said she was nothing...Gina Miller was found by her biological family when she was nineteen. She had expected a grand reunion and being showered by love. Chapter 40

The fortune-teller's eyes lit up as he said happily, "Okay"

"You two are truly a talented couple, suited for each other, destined for eternal love..."

The fortune-teller was eager to recite all the blessings he had learned.

Gabriel listened with satisfaction, preparing to give more money for the fortune-teller to continue speaking, only to realize he had run out of cash. The fortune-teller immediately gave him his bank account, saying enthusiastically, "Sir, you can send it to my card." Gabriel transferred 2 thousand dollars to the fortune-teller.

The fortune-teller was excited and said, "Sir, you and this beautiful lady will definitely live a life of happiness forever, and you will give birth to many babies."

If it weren't for Gina pulling Gabriel away, Gabriel might have given him more money.

Gina teased Gabriel, "Mr. Jackson, seems like you're generous with your money."

Gabriel smiled, "I like what he said, so I'm happy to give him money."

Gina felt her cheeks warm. She changed the subject and said, "That fortune-teller must be thrilled. He met a big benefactor today."

"A big benefactor? I feel that what he said will come true. Gabriel's tone contained a faint smile. "Would you like to earn money from me, Gina?"

But then he added, "No, you don't have to earn it. If it's something you want, I can give it to you."

Gabriel's eyes showed a hint of indulgence.

Gina was taken aback and said somewhat stiffly, "Your money is yours. You can give it to me or take it back, right?"

So, it was better to have her own money.

"I can write a gift contract or a transfer agreement, whatever you want, Gabriel said with sincerity.

Gina awkwardly avoided his gaze, "I'm not familiar with you, why would I want your money?"

"So would

be willing to get close to me? For example, be my fiancée? That would at least give me a title," Gabriel added.

Gina hadn't expected Gabriel to say so, leaving her unsure how to respond.

Was he being too hasty?

Gabriel worried that his eagerness would scare Gina away, so he said, "You can take your time to consider this. I'll wait for your answer."

Gina lowered her eyelids and said nothing.

As they walked by, two passersby were muttering complaints.

chapter 40

May

That Peter is just a scammer. Thankfully, I didn't waste money on him for a fortune-telling session. What bad luck," a passerby said.

86%

Yeah, the lady who tried to cut in line earlier saved us. Otherwise, I would've wasted money on Peter, another one added.

We should thank her. I almost joined others in cursing her earlier. She's really kind-hearted," said a man.

When we left just now, it looked like Peter was being beaten up, right?"

Serves him right."

Gina listened indifferently to their conversation, thinking that Peter should have finished dealing with his mess by now. She needed to take Peter to handle some official business.

She turned back towards Blessing Tower, with Gabriel following.

At the base of Blessing Tower, the long queue from over an hour ago had disappeared.

Peter, disheveled and bruised, sat on the ground. His white robe was covered in shoe prints. The evidence he had embezzled from the church renovation fund, along with photos of his extravagant spending at bars, lay on the ground.

Peter's eyes were vacant, as if he had lost his soul.

Gina thought to herself, 'One reaps what he sows.

Peter had pinned the label of disaster onto her, making her bear so much blame and endure so much humiliation.

If someone didn't harm Gina, she wouldn't take action. But if someone did, she would repay them a hundredfold.

This was Gina's principle.

"Get up, Gina said, looking down at Peter.

Peter shrank back when he saw Gina.

He regretted ever taking Olivia's money and doing things for her.

Peter dared not resent Gina. After all, Gina was acquainted with Gabriel, and their relationship seemed intimate. It would be useless to resent Gina. In the end, he was the one at fault.

So, all his resentment shifted onto Olivia.

Peter wiped his face and stood up. He was getting on in years, and being beaten up by so many people had left him feeling like his bones were about to fall apart.

He seemed more anxious than Gina and said, "Miss Miller, you said you wanted me to expose Olivia's bribery, right? Let's go. I'm ready"

Since he was not feeling good, he wouldn't let go of Olivia.

Gina could tell that Peter was so excited because he wanted to get back at Olivia.

It was quite entertaining.

Ci chuckled inwardly and said, "No rush, I'll give you some time to change your clothes.

Chapter 40

An hour later, they arrived at Vegate Central Hospital.

Gina got out of Gabriel's Rolls Royce, while Peter, dressed in casual clothes, got out of a taxi.

"See you next time. Gabriel bid farewell to Gina reluctantly.

"Goodbye." Gina was not so indifferent as before.

Gabriel noticed this detail and felt very pleased.

David watched Gina walk away and asked curiously. "Mr. Jackson, aren't you going to help Miss Miller?"

If Gabriel intervened, the Miller family wouldn't dare to bully Gina, and she could vent her frustrations freely.

David had seen the disgusting behavior of the Miller family, James, as the eldest, even tried to run over Gina with a car. If it weren't for Gabriel's timely intervention, Gina would be in hospital now.

However, James had received his due punishment. Following Gabriel's instructions, David ensured that James's brakes were tampered with while his car was being repaired after he sent it to the shop due to a punctured tire from a nail.

James had predictably gotten into an accident.

But he deserved it.

"No, Gina doesn't like me interfering without her consent. I don't want to upset her," Gabriel replied.

Besides, Gabriel knew Gina could handle things herself.

If the Miller family dared to harm Gina again, he wouldn't let them off lightly, Gabriel's eyes flashed with a hint of fierceness.

He knew the Miller family treated Gina poorly, but he hadn't acted before because Gina hadn't completely cut ties with them yet. They were still her "family" nominally.

Gabriel turned to David and asked, "How did the investigation go?"

David was speechless.

Gabriel said he wouldn't intervene in Gina's affairs but still offered silent support.

"Mr. Jackson, the surveillance footage of Olivia's car accident has been tampered with and is being repaired. However, I found out that someone beat us to it and extracted the damaged surveillance footage."
