

When She Stops Playing Nice Chapter 42

Chapter 42

Peter still remembered how shameless Olivia was when she paid to slander Gina. She has two faces.

Noah said angrily, "Gina, it's not the first time you have been so violent. We saw you beat up Liam and Mom. You even threatened us. Peter must be coerced by you.

James, feeling his sense of justice overflowing, said, "Mr. Lennon, we can help you report to the police.

Peter listened and sweated. He thought, It seems Miss Miller is not easy to trille with."

He glanced again at James, whose legs were in casts, and thought that James was beaten like this by Gina. Peter was secretly glad he hadn't been beaten by Gina, or he'd be in hospital too.

He cleared his throat and said, "Guys, listen, Miss Miller didn't beat me.

Peter didn't know how to make them believe him. Even with his testimony, no one in the Miller family believed Gina.

He even suspected that Olivia, instead of Gina, was the one from the Miller family, daughter. He had seen someone so biased toward outsiders.

The Miller family was too absurd.

Peter took out his trump card and said, "I have a recording of the conversation when Olivia made the deal with me. Listen for yourselves."

Peter pressed play.

Olivia's sharp voice came through. "Just say she's a jinx, that she'll bring misfortune to the Miller family. Exaggerate the scary side..."

'Why did Peter keep this?' Olivia thought in shock.

Olivia didn't know whether it was because Peter often did shady things or because he knew too many rich people's secrets, he was somewhat worried about being silenced.

That was why he kept the recording as leverage for self-protection, even resorting to a scorched earth policy if necessary.

Ella, listening to the recording, was shocked. It was hard for her to accept that Olivia, who usually spoke softly and gently, could say such mean words.

She looked at Olivia in disbelief.

The two men who had just defended Olivia were now speechless too.

Olivia, seeing Ella's disappointed look, felt scared.

She cried and stuttered, "Mom, I was out of my mind. I'm so scared that you won't care about me when Gina is back. After all, she's your daughter. I regretted doing this. But after so many bad things happened in the family, I thought that maybe Gina was a jinx, so I didn't explain this to you."

Although she had bribed Peter to slander Gina, all the bad things that happened in the family were real.

Chapter 42

BORI

Perhaps Gina was really a jinx.

Olivia thought, 'Even if she isn't, she secretly bullied me, seduced Ethan, and forged a will. The bad things she has done are far worse than what I did.'

Ella was disappointed in Olivia not because she knew Olivia had wronged Gina, but because she found it hard to accept that Olivia, seemingly gentle and obedient, could lie and distort the fact, making her an accomplice in doing evil.

Gina chuckled.

Olivia not only showed no remorse but also continued to shift the blame onto her.

She was truly despicable.

But Gina didn't rush to nail Olivia

After returning to the Miller family, Gina would investigate and settle the strange things that had occurred.

At that moment, Gina's phone vibrated. She received a new email sent anonymously.

She only used her email to communicate with trusted individuals. Who could have sent her this email?

Gina opened the email with suspicion. Inside was Olivia's medical examination report, and Gina immediately noticed the blood type section.

Olivia's blood type was A.

Gina's expression darkened.

Olivia's voice sounded in her ears. "I'm sorry, Gina. It's my fault. You can scold or hit me as you like, as long as you forgive

"How about this? I kneel to you." Olivia looked resolute, ready to kneel before Gina.

Noah quickly grabbed Olivia, even turning to accuse Gina. "Don't kneel. Gina, don't be too pushy."

Olivia pushed away Noah's hand and said, "Brother, let me kneel, I should be responsible for what I did."

The two of them displayed deep sibling affection.

"Shut up." Gina's cold voice cut through.

There was an invisible pressure in her tone, and the two of them instinctively fell silent.

"You don't need to apologize hastily, I have something else to say," Gina said calmly.

Olivia swallowed nervously, breaking out in a cold sweat.

"On the day of the house getting on fire, you hurried back home because you worried about me and got into a car accident. It was actually a scene you orchestrated. You didn't actually have a car accident, let alone go into shock, and your blood type isn't HR."

Olivia felt like she had been struck by lightning. 'How did Gina know all this?' she wondered,

She remembered having someone destroy the surveillance footage of the accident scene a long time ago. "You have no evidence," Olivia said.

Chapter 42

Gina laughed and said, I've been waiting for you to say that?

She took out the surveillance footage of the accident scene and sent them all a copy of Olivia's medical examination report.

After sending it. Gina blacklisted the Miller family's contacts again.

Ella looked at the conspicuous type A blood on the medical examination report, feeling u and s t a g e r e d a bit. Noah hurried forward to support Ella.

She almost blacked out

Ella calmed herself down. With ironclad evidence, she was somewhat angry as she questioned Olivia, "How many more lies did you tell? You know how worried I was for you when you had a car accident? I was terrified, and you were lying to me?"

Olivia was in tears, saying, "Mom, I'm sorry. I didn't mean to,

She raised her hand and slapped herself hard, shouting. I'm mean!"

Seeing Olivia's face quickly swell up from the slap, Ella couldn't bear it anymore. She grabbed Olivia's hand and said, "Enough. Stop."

Olivia stopped, looking pitifully at Gina, as if she were the victim. "Gina, what do you want me to do to make it up to you? Do you want me to leave the Miller family and give everything back to you? I can do that."

Chapter 43

Olivia wanted to leave.

Before Olivia could finish speaking, James interrupted her, sneering, "Gina, if you think you can come back to the Miller family in this way, I advise you to give up. The contract to sever ties was initiated by you. Once signed, there's no turning back."

Gina coldly eyed him and said, "You're mistaken. I don't care about going back."

"Then how do you propose to resolve this?" Noah gritted his teeth, knowing that since Gina came prepared, she wouldn't back down easily.

"An eye for an eye, of course, Gina smirked.

Noah immediately guarded Olivia behind him and said vigilantly. "What are you planning? If you dare lay a finger on Olivia, don't blame me for being rude to you."

Gina ignored Noah's sudden act of chivalry and said to Olivia, "You owe me the 600cc of blood that was taken from me. You have to repay me."

Olivia was stunned and thought, 'How was I supposed to repay that?'

Their blood types were different. She couldn't just give Gina back the blood.

"Stop being ridiculous, just pay you back with money. How much do you want?" James intervened.

"I don't want money, I want her blood," Gina stated firmly.

Olivia suddenly had an idea to gain sympathy. She nodded vigorously and said, "Okay, I'll give you back the blood."

The people of the Miller family thought Olivia was going to call the doctor or nurse to draw blood, but instead, they saw Olivia suddenly pick up the fruit knife from the bedside table and swiftly cut her wrist, blood oozing out. The Miller family was shocked. "Olivia!" Ella exclaimed.

Even though Olivia was unscathed during the car accident and pretended to get into shock, Ella still felt distressed when Olivia was injured.

Noah hurriedly covered Olivia's wound with tissue.

Olivia dodged and said, "Mom, brother, I'm fine. I did something wrong and should accept punishment. I should return the blood to Gina, as long as she can forgive me."

C i n a saw Olivia's wound and wanted to laugh. Olivia was treasuring her life so much that she didn't dare to go too far. "Are you planning to return the blood in installments? With such a wound, I bet it'll heal in less than two minutes, right?"

"Gina, be merciful! Are you trying to kill Olivia? Losing 600cc of blood will cause shock, James roared.

Gina laughed, "So you know that losing 600cc will cause shock. If I hadn't acted in time that day, wouldn't you have taken 1000cc of my blood already? Olivia's life is important, but mine isn't?"

The Miller family were speechless.

Olivia continued to act pitifully and said, "Don't argue because of me. It's all my fault. I'm sorry, Gina, I'll definitely return the blood to you."

After saying that, she gritted her teeth and cut her wrist again. This time she was more ruthless, cutting into the artery, and blood gushed out.

Ella's face turned pale as she said, "Doctor, go call the doctor right away."

"If she doesn't return the 600cc of blood today, next time I'll take double. My time is precious, and I don't want to waste it with you. Consider the extra 600cc as interest,"

Gina said coldly.

The Miller family were stunned.

Noah looked at Gina in disbelief and said. "Are you insane? If anything happens to Olivia, I'll fight you to the end."

Gina, unwilling to show weakness, countered, "If she doesn't return 600cc of blood to me, I'll make public all the things she's done. Let everyone see her true colors."

Gina knew they cared most about the Miller family's reputation, and sure enough, after she said this, they didn't rush to call for a doctor, especially Ella.

Ella was worried that Ethan's parents would know the family secrets and think Olivia was a bad woman, which would affect the marriage between the two families.

She could only dig her nails into her palm and glare fiercely at Gina

Noah also dared not act rashly.

Gina took the cup James used for drinking water from the bedside table, estimated its capacity, and instructed Olivia, "Fill this cup up. It's about 600cc."

"Okay." Olivia, feeling ashamed, took the cup and placed it under her wrist, letting the blood drip into the cup.

But she was still unwilling to "repay" Gina with 600cc of blood.

Just as the bottom of the cup was about to be covered by the blood, Olivia began to pretend to feel weak and rubbed her forehead.

Noah felt heartbroken and said to Gina angrily, "Olivia was already fragile, and because of your false accusations, she got her right hand broken by Miss Bush. If she still needs to repay the blood, you might really take Olivia's life!"

"It was Jasmine's business that she recognized the wrong person. If you have the guts, go find Jasmine to settle the score. Don't rant in front of me. As for the broken bone, how did you know it's not a pretense?" Gina sneered.

C n a had long seen through Olivia's nature, and as she asked this, she observed Olivia's momentary panic in her eyes and knew she had hit the mark.

Gina had always felt that Olivia's lies were very clumsy, and her attempts to frame her were very crude, but the Miller family seemed blind to it.

Perhaps they weren't blind, they were just pretending to be ignorant.

"Gina, many classmates saw Miss Bush drag me into the ladies' room and beat me up that day," Olivia said in a small voice.

It meant she had witnesses too.

"Did I say she didn't beat you?" Gina asked calmly.

"I'm just curious about why she happened to break your right hand when you were supposed to be designing new jewelry for the Miller family. Is it because Jasmine really broke your right hand, or is it an excuse to avoid designing drafts?"

Gina's words hit the nail on the head.

Olivia's heart was pounding. All her thoughts had been seen through by Gina.

She thought, 'Could it be that she could read minds?'

"I didn't. Don't misunderstand me. Miss Bush recognized the wrong person. I didn't blame you, and I didn't want to see my right hand injured."

"Don't engage in meaningless arguments. Why don't you contact Jasmine, and confront her? After all, you have Jasmine's contact information, don't you? You dare!" Gina sneered.

Olivia felt guilty and changed the subject, saying, "Please don't make it difficult for me. Miss Bush said that because I'm your sister, even if she mistook someone else for me, she still wants to beat me every time she sees me. How could I dare to contact her?"

"Gina, that's enough. Noah gritted his teeth. The thought of Olivia being set up and beaten by Gina made his heart ache..

Gina smirked disdainfully, "Enough? The matter isn't resolved yet. The blood thing is dealt with, but the matter of bribing Peter by saying I'm a jinx is still pending

Ella's expression turned ugly as she said, "What else do you want?"

want the 20% stake in Miller Jewels that Grandma left for me."

"You've already taken 600 million dollars, and now you want a 20% stake? You're insatiable." Ella trembled with anger.

Gina didn't care about anything from the Miller family, but what rightfully belonged to her, she had to take back.

"I'm taking back what's mine. Any problem with that?" Gina coldly retorted.

Each member of the Miller family was itching with hatred, but they didn't dare to confront Gina directly. They found themselves powerless against her.

James said coldly, "5"

Gina chuckled at him s p i d l y thinking that they were bargaining at a market.

"20%. Not a percent less, Gina emphasized again.

Ella was furious. To preserve the Miller family's dignity, she said through her clenched teeth, "Fine."

"Within a day, I want to receive the share transfer contract. Have your lawyer draft the contract, then contact me. If it exceeds one day, what Olivia did will make headlines in all the major newspapers in Wrinster."

Ella was so angry she couldn't speak.

“Can you do it? Answer me.” Gina looked down coldly at them.

James clenched his fists and said, “Yes.”

At this moment, Olivia was pale. She picked up a cup full of blood and handed it to Gina. “Gina, the blood.”

“Put it down,” Gina said indifferently.

Olivia didn’t know what Gina intended. She placed the cup on the ground. Gina took a step forward and kicked the cup over. The 600cc of blood spilled onto the ground.

Olivia felt deeply humiliated. Gina’s actions were akin to stepping on her dignity.

She cried, not because she wanted to feign weakness and shed crocodile tears but because she was upset.

Gina responded casually, ‘She returned my blood, I can do whatever I want with it. If you feel sorry for her, you can collect it and give it back to her.’

With this remark, Gina casually turned and left.

Peter stood silently on the side. He had been a bystander for a while, not daring to breathe, afraid of getting involved. Now, that Gina was leaving, he hurriedly followed her.

Olivia felt dizzy. She had lost too much blood and almost fell to the ground, but Noah quickly caught her. Weakly, Olivia leaned against Noah’s chest.

“Brother, Mom, I feel like dying.”

“No, you will be fine. Noah, take your sister to see a doctor.”

“Okay.”

Peter followed behind Gina.

He had to admit that Gina was cool when she fought against the Miller family.

Peter had developed a bit of admiration for Gina

“Why are you following me?” Gina stopped in her tracks and asked sideways.

Peter gulped nervously. “I don’t know. Miss Miller, is there anything else you need me to do?”

“No, you can go.”

“Okay.” Peter breathed a sigh of relief. He was actually quite worried. He thought that after Gina had dealt with the Miller family, she might turn her attention to him. Now that Gina allowed him to leave, Peter heaved a sigh of relief and hurriedly made his escape. Suddenly, Gina called out to Peter again, “Wait.”

Peter’s heart skipped a beat, and he nervously stopped in his tracks, showing a smile uglier than crying. “Miss Miller, is there something else?”

“In the future, don’t cheat or deceive. Just live honestly,” Gina said.

“Yes, I will keep that in mind.” Peter nodded repeatedly.

It would be difficult for him to continue to deceive or cheat in the future. But he still had to clean up the mess he had made. Gina allowed him to leave, and he breathed a sigh of relief, quickly slipping away.

Gina walked out of the hospital and saw Gabriel’s Rolls Royce still parked on the side of the road.

The door opened, and Gabriel stepped out of the car.

"Is everything settled?" Gabriel asked warmly.

"Yes."

Gina nodded slightly and asked, "Have you been waiting for me all this time?"

"Yes, can you spend the rest of the day with me?"

"What do you want?" Gina didn't understand.

Gabriel said, "Shopping, eating, or whatever you want. I'll accompany you."

Gabriel didn't know what to do on a date with a lady, so he could only suggest more general options.

Although she had time now, Gina didn't know what to do.

Gabriel's phone rang, and he said, "I have to take this call"

Gina nodded faintly

"Mr. Gabriel, something's wrong. Neil drank the tonic Miss Bush sent and something happened. He's under treatment at Prover Hospital."

Gabriel's face darkened. "I see, I'll be right there."

He hung up the phone immediately.

Seeing Gabriel's expression, Gina asked, "What's wrong!"

"Something happened to my father," Gabriel said.

"Where's Neil now? I will go with you," Gina said with a frown.

Having spent time with Neil, Gina felt that he was an amiable elder. She had long missed feeling the love and care of an elder. So hearing that Neil was ill, Gina couldn't help but feel worried.

"Okay, let's get in the car.

Gina followed Gabriel into the car.

They soon arrived outside the emergency room of Prøver Hospital.

Isaac, who was waiting outside, saw Gabriel

"This is the tonic sent by Miss Bush. It has been taken for testing and found no toxic ingredients inside. But after Neil drank it, he had a heart attack, Isaac said puzzledly.

"Let me see."

Gina took the thermos from Isaac's hand. Her sense of smell was sharp. She sniffed the tonic and detected a scent of alcohol.

"There's alcohol in it. Neil can't drink alcohol," Gina said with a serious expression.

And there was quite a lot of alcohol in it.

Isaac was shocked and said. "The tonic was personally sent by Miss Bush, claiming she made it herself. Neil didn't want to waste Miss Bush's goodwill, so he drank quite a bit."

At that moment, the door of the emergency room opened, and a nurse walked out. "Mr.

Gabriel, Mr. Jackson's condition is not optimistic. You'd better prepare for the worst scenario..."

Then the nurse handed the critical condition notice to Gabriel for signing. Isaac felt his vision darken. Even Prover Hospital, with its top-notch international medical resources, couldn't save Neil. Couldn't Neil get through the danger this time? Gina suddenly said. "Don't worry. I'll go in and take a look." With her presence, she wouldn't let anything happen to Neil. Isaac and the nurse looked at Gina in astonishment. Although Isaac knew that Gina had saved Neil the last time he had a heart attack, he thought Gina had only performed standard first aid measures. But now, the situation was different. It was a critical moment, and the emergency room was filled with elite doctors, many of whom were returnees. Gina wasn't even a medical student. Could she really handle it? "Miss Miller, you.... Isaac was doubtful. But the next moment, Gabriel said, "Alright, leave it to you." "Mr. Gabriel, this..." Isaac hesitated. "Okay" Gina nodded. She was about to enter the emergency room when she heard footsteps behind her. Then a deep voice rang out. "Gabriel, are you really going to entrust my brother's life to this young lady? Aren't you joking?" Gina turned to see a man in a suit, with graying hair. He looked a bit like Neil, standing with his hands behind his back. There was disdain in his eyes as he met Gina's gaze. He was accompanied by a group of people. The old man met Gina's gaze with undisguised contempt. Gabriel's face cooled down, and he greeted the man indifferently. "Harry." Harry nodded slightly.

"Gabriel, as soon as I heard about my brother's situation, I rushed over and brought along Ibrahim Rosario, an authoritative expert in international cardiology." Harry gestured to Ibrahim behind him. Ibrahim, with his blond hair and deep eyes, had been in the field of cardiology for over thirty years, and the years had left their marks on his face. He pushed his silver-rimmed glasses up his nose and said, "Mr. Gabriel, to make it brief, please allow me to perform surgery on Mr. Jackson." Gabriel's gaze was murky, and he refused in a cold voice. "There's no need. Gina will do." He didn't trust Harry's people, just as he didn't trust Harry. Harry's face immediately darkened. "Gabriel, are you joking with me? Are you really going to let a young woman handle it? I'm afraid she can't even hold a scalpel steady. If anything happens to Neil, you will have to bear the stigma of being unfilial." "I don't need to use a scalpel," Gina retorted without backing down. Harry snorted coldly. "Who do you think you are? You have no say here." Gabriel's face darkened instantly. "Harry, be polite to Gina" Harry sensed the coldness in Gabriel's eyes, and the chill made him uncomfortable. He detested Gabriel's eyes the most.... Harry snorted coldly, "Gabriel, even if you stood by her side, you shouldn't joke about my brother's life"

Gina's expression remained cold. "Stop arguing"

She glanced at Harry and Ibrahim and said, "I don't have time to waste with you."

She took the sterile gown and mask from the nurse and prepared to enter the emergency room.

Harry's face darkened, and he signaled to his bodyguards, who immediately stepped forward to block Gina's path.

Gabriel's coldness in his eyes intensified. "Harry, what does this mean?"

Harry's expression hardened. "I won't stand by and watch as you make a joke of my brother's life."

Ibrahim also put on a sterile gown, preparing to enter the emergency room. He scrutinized Gina seriously. He was amazed by her beauty, but then he said in a condescending tone, "Young lady, it's best not to be too confident. Can you bear the consequences if something goes wrong?"

Gina was getting impatient because of Harry's antics, which had caused a delay in saving Neil.

Gina flexed her wrist, ready for a fight.

Ibrahim, feeling ignored by Gina, became annoyed. Wherever he went, he would be respected. He couldn't tolerate being disregarded by a young woman.

"I'm talking to you, didn't you hear?" Ibrahim said angrily.

Gina finally glanced at Ibrahim and said, "You should say that to yourselves."

"You!" Ibrahim was angry. Gina was questioning his medical skills.

He couldn't take it.

Chapter 45

Gina checked the time. Twelve minutes had passed since the nurse came out to inform them of Neil's worsening condition. She couldn't delay any longer.

She glanced at the towering bodyguards blocking her way, then stepped forward and stomped on their feet. Caught off guard, the bodyguards let out a howl of pain and jumped up in agony.

Gina slipped past the bodyguards.

Her actions stunned Harry. Regaining his senses, he angrily ordered, "What are you waiting for? Stop her."

"Who dares?" Gabriel's tone remained frosty, but in his low voice, there was an unbearable pressure.

Harry's bodyguards were intimidated and caught in a dilemma. Harry met Gabriel's gaze with a determined look.

Gina had already entered the emergency room.

Harry clenched his fists secretly and thought. These juniors intentionally opposed me.'

Chapter 46

Gina and Gabriel didn't even respect Harry,

Gabriel had used to going against him. But Harry didn't expect a young woman to dare neglect him.

Harry glared at Ibrahim and said, "What are you waiting for? Go in."

Ibrahim snapped out of it and then entered the emergency room.

Harry snorted. "I don't trust that she can save my brother. I want to go in and see for myself."

He had a nurse bring him a sterile gown to change into. Gabriel, mistrustful of Ibrahim, also entered the emergency room.

"Excuse me," Gina said calmly.

The doctors looked puzzled as Gina took out a medical kit to treat Neil.

They watched as her slender fingers held a silver needle, piercing Neil's scalp, then his temple, and his philtrum...

Ibrahim had never seen such a scene and exclaimed, "What are you doing? He is already weak. If you keep bothering him like this, you'll kill him."

Gina found Ibrahim's ignorance amusing. "If you don't understand, just keep quiet. No one is asking for your opinion."

Gina found Ibrahim annoying.

Ibrahim felt immense shame and disdainfully remarked, "If the silver needles can cure him, the sun will rise in the west."

He thought Gina was just fooling around.

He never expected that Gabriel, who was stern, was actually indulging Gina. Was he out of his mind?' Ibrahim thought.

Gina didn't even spare him a glance. Just stop talking nonsense."

Ibrahim snorted disdainfully and felt that Gina was truly ignorant.

Harry, seeing Neil covered in needles, narrowed his eyes. Then he pointed at Gabriel, saying, "You're condoning this incompetent doctor to torture your father. Gabriel, you disappoint me."

With that, Harry, in a fit of indignation, grabbed Gina. Gina had been concentrating on treating Neil, so when Harry grabbed her, she almost misplaced the needle. Fortunately, Gina quickly reacted, steadying herself and inserting the needle into the correct place. Seeing Gina unaffected by his actions, Harry prepared to use more force to pull her away and let Ibrahim take over.

Everything had happened too quickly for Gabriel to intervene. Seeing Harry about to interfere again, Gabriel was angry. He was about to step in, but Gina beat him to it, raising her hand to push Harry away.

Gina didn't hold back because she had endured Harry for too long. She was treating a patient, and Harry's repeated disruptions had almost caused a mistake/ Gina was angry.

While she respected the elders, she wouldn't tolerate being treated unfairly just because of Harry's age.

11:33 Tue, 21 May M

Chapter 46

Harry was stunned by Gina's strength and thought, 'She has quite the grip. How dare she lay hands on me?'

"You bastard, who do you think you are to lay hands on me?" Harry asked.

Gina suddenly turned around and retorted, "Keep blabbering, and I'll shut you up."

The silver needle in her hand gleamed with a cold light. Harry had a moment of daze. He didn't expect her to scold him.

Harry was so angry that he couldn't speak.

He wondered which family Gina was from.

Originally, Gabriel was worried Gina would be wronged, but seeing Gina so resolute, he felt relieved.

Gina was always so spirited, and that was one of the things that fascinated him about her.

“Harry, Gina is treating the patient. Are you trying to cause trouble?” Gabriel’s tone was icy, tinged with a hint of interrogation.

Harry seemed somewhat guilty. “Gabriel, why are you siding with her? I’m more worried about my brother’s safety than anyone else. I can’t stand by and watch you joke about Neil’s life. Aren’t you upset seeing her sticking so many needles into him?”

This is traditional medicine, not the random needle poking you think it is. Gina has her own methods. If you don’t understand medicine, then don’t make baseless judgments. Gabriel said coldly.

Harry was on the verge of exploding. “If anything happens to Neil, she must pay with her life.”

The atmosphere in the emergency room became tense. The nurses and doctors stood by trembling.

They didn’t dare to ask these distinguished and influential people to leave, so they could only stand quietly.

Gina was getting a headache from Harry’s shouting, but there was nothing she could do. Saving lives was the priority. She also knew that she couldn’t kick out the idle people now, so she had to focus on her task.

Ibrahim also thought Gina was randomly sticking needles.

Finally, the emergency room quieted down, and everyone’s eyes were on Gina.

Gina proceeded with her treating methodically.

Suddenly, the nearby electrocardiogram flatlined.

Harry’s eyes widened, a fleeting hint of joy flashed in his eyes, but his face was filled with indignation. “This d a m n e d woman has murdered Neil. Catch her, Harry said.

Gabriel glanced at the flatlined electrocardiogram, filled with doubt.

However, Gina remained calm and said, “Stop making noise. Just wait a little longer.”

“Do you think we can be calm? I won’t let you leave alive,” Harry said.

Then he pulled out a handgun from his suit pocket, pointing it at Gina.

Chapter 46

Gabriel’s pupils contracted suddenly. He hadn’t expected Harry to carry a gun with him. He was prepared in advance.

Gina didn’t even look at Harry, silently counting down in her mind.

The next second, Harry prepared to pull the trigger.

“Stop,” Gabriel growled lowly.

At the same time, the straight line on the electrocardiogram returned to a curve.

Neil’s heart began beating.

Harry was stunned, but he had already pulled the trigger. Gabriel grabbed his wrist and diverted the shot, hitting the wall behind the bed and leaving a hole.

The nurses who were timid had already been scared unconscious by the commotion.

The doctors were trembling.

Their legs weakened, and beads of sweat formed on their foreheads.

It was very thrilling. Just when they thought two lives would be lost, the situation took another turn.

Gina didn't even turn her head, starting to remove the silver needles one by one.

She put them back into her medical kit.

Then, Gina addressed the doctors, "Alright, stitch up where you need to."

The doctors quickly took over. Although they had all been quite frightened just now, they had to protect Neil.

Harry froze. He had just seen the electrocardiogram screen turn into a straight line.

He thought, 'What the hell is she up to?'

Gina glanced at the hole in the wall caused by the gunshot and smirked.

The atmosphere in the ward became even more eerie.

The doctors quickly stitched up Neil's surgical incision.

Trembling, one of them announced, "Neil's vital signs have returned to normal. He can be transferred to a regular ward now.

Ibrahim couldn't believe what he saw. His jaw was almost dropping to the ground.

Gina actually managed to revive Neil with just a few silver needles.

At the moment when Neil's heart stopped, he thought Gina was going to kill Neil.

"How is that possible?" Ibrahim wondered.

He felt he couldn't understand Gina's medical skills.

Gabriel said, "Move Neil to the regular ward."

They all squeezed into the emergency room, which was quite a sight.

The doctors pushed Neil towards the general ward, with Gina following closely. She wouldn't leave until Neil woke up.

Gabriel cast a cold glance at Harry and then strode out of the emergency room.

It didn't take long after Neil woke up. When he saw the familiar and graceful figure by his bedside, he thought he was dreaming.

His vision was still blurry, and he tentatively called out, "Gina?"

"Neil, I'm here," Gina answered.

Neil's mood instantly improved, and even his complexion became much better.

Eager to sit up, Neil, who had just had an operation, was still weak. Gina quickly supported him, helping him sit up.

"Neil, be careful," Gina reminded him.

Hearing Gina's concern made Neil extremely happy.

"Alright. By the way, did you rush over when you heard about my accident?"

The nurses were somewhat surprised. It should be a good time for Gina to take credit, given that she saved Neil's life. Or she could complain to Neil about the threat and injustice she had just faced, asking him to stand up for her.

However, Gina seemed indifferent, as if the perilous events just now didn't affect her at all.

How could she be so calm?

The nurses were extremely surprised, looking at Gina with a newfound admiration.

The nurse thought that Gina was so cool that she almost fell in love with Gina.

Neil held Gina's hand and gently patted it, saying. "When my heart was failing, the pain was unbearable. I thought I might not make it this time, and I wouldn't see you again."

"You will be fine." Gina's eyes were incredibly firm.

"Fortunately, I made it through. Neil sighed.

He had to see Gabriel marrying Gina. If he had kicked the bucket just like that, he would definitely not rest in

"Dad, Gina rushed over to save you," Gabriel chimed in.

Neil only just noticed there were others in the room.

peace.

When he heard Gabriel's words, Neil's eyes lit up. "So it was you who saved me again.

Not only are you skilled in medicine, but you're also my lucky star."

"Lucky star."

This title made Gina pause for a moment. She hadn't expected to be thought of as a lucky star.

"Oh, by the way, when I was half-conscious just now, I heard a loud noise. What happened?" Neil asked.

"Harry fired a gun, trying to shoot Gina Gabriel's gaze was sharp as he said so, as if they could pierce through Harry.

Neil's heart skipped a beat, and his expression instantly turned serious as he looked at Harry. "Harry, what's going on? Gina my lifesaver, and yet you tried to shoot her? Do you want me to have a pang of conscience for the rest of my life?" Neil said angrily.

Harry explained with a stiff face, "At the time, your heartbeat stopped, and I thought she had killed you, so I wanted to avenge you and fired the gun."

Gina asked indifferently, "Didn't I tell you to wait for a moment?"

Harry was at a loss for words. He admitted he had been very impatient at that moment.

And he had thought Neil's death was a certainty, but he had miscalculated

Harry felt increasingly irritated by Gina's questioning. The more he looked at her, the more displeased he felt. "Neil, you may not know how arrogant and disrespectful she was in the emergency room. She didn't even take me in her eyes"

Chapter 47

"Respect is mutual, Harry. From the beginning, you didn't respect Gina, so Gina didn't feel the need to respect you." Gabriel's words were incisive.

Harry's face turned pale. He thought that Gina was their family, and he was just an outsider.

They had unanimously turned against Harry.

Harry thought. What did she do that both Neil and Gabriel are on her side?"

"Gina wouldn't disrespect you without reason. She's my lifesaver, yet you nearly shot her. Harry, you've made a huge mistake in this matter. Apologize to Gina," Neil ordered.

Harry couldn't believe it. Making him apologize to Gina was like t m p l i n g on his dignity.

Harry gritted his teeth and refused to apologize.

Gabriel's face turned cold. "Harry, if you're unwilling to apologize to C i n a, you're not obliged to. However, you may also choose not to attend future board meetings of the Jackson Group. You'll have more leisure time then."

Harry was taken aback.

To make him apologize to Gina, Gabriel was now resorting to threatening him with the group's shares.

'Did Gabriel imply that I will be removed from the shareholder list?' Harry thought.

Harry knew that Gabriel always did what he said.

Neil tacitly agreed and didn't refute Gabriel.

Chapter 48

However, the Jackson Group was founded by Gabriel.

Harry couldn't confront Gabriel head-on.

He was just angry.

For an outsider, the family almost tore itself apart.

Harry's face turned pale with anger,

Reluctantly, he spat out, "I'm sorry."

"Sorry, to whom?" Gina retorted.

"Sorry, Miss Miller, for being rude to you just now. Please forgive me for any offense"

Harry almost forced the words out of his teeth.

Neil looked at Gina apologetically and said, "Gina, I'm really sorry for scaring you.

Gina shook her head and said, "It's Okay, I wasn't scared."

It was just a small scene. She wasn't that easily frightened.

Harry felt like he had lost face. "Neil, I specifically invited Ibrahim, an internationally renowned expert in cardiology, to treat you. If you feel unwell in any way, contact me anytime. Mr. Rosario will be in Wrinster during this time."

Harry's implication was that he didn't trust Gina's medical skills, even though she saved Neil.

Harry gestured to Ibrahim, who nodded to Neil, and Neil didn't respond.

"But now that you're fine. I'll come see you next time, Harry said.

After saying that, he left quickly and angrily.

"Wait, Mr. Rosario." Gina stopped Ibrahim, who was following Harry, with a half-smile.

"Did you forget what you just said? You just looked down on my skills," Gina reminded him.

Ibrahim's face went pale. He reluctantly apologized to Gina, "Miss Miller, I'm very sorry, I was too arrogant just now. Please forgive me."

After Ibrahim finished speaking, he sincerely bowed to C i a .

Ibrahim's apology seemed sincere on the surface, but Gina sensed a hint of malice in his tone.

"Miss Miller, I won't bother you anymore. With that, Ibrahim turned and left.

Gina watched Ibrahim's back thoughtfully, sensing that he was not simple.

Harry briskly walked out of the hospital and got into the car, slamming the door shut with a loud "bang, causing the car to shake. The driver was startled, not daring to make a sound, and Ibrahim got into the car afterward.

“Mr. Jackson, it seems that the woman still has some skills,” Ibrahim said.

Ibrahim had a feeling that although Gina seemed weak and harmless, if things came to a head, she might not be easy to deal with.

“Do you think I’m blind? Har was about to lose his temper.

Harry shouted. “You couldn’t even seize such a good opportunity. You didn’t live seize such a good opportunity. You didn’t live up to your reputation!”

Ibrahim dared not speak after being scolded.

But with Gabriel protecting Gina, Harry was also afraid to do anything to Gina.

After a while, Harry calmed down slightly and snorted, “She’s young and naive. If she dares to ruin my plan, I’ll skin her alive

Ibrahim thought of Gina’s good appearance.

Harry instructed the driver to drive away.

After a while, a Mercedes stopped at the hospital gate.

Prover Hospital regulated that only those who visited relatives or patients in need of hospitalization were allowed to enter.

Last time, Ella transferred Phillip from Prover Hospital to Vegate Central Hospital because the treatment costs were too high.

So Ella and Olivia could only stand at the gate feeling anxious.

Olivia learned about Neil’s sudden illness and hospitalization from Ethan and thought it was a good opportunity to leave a good impression on Neil. She bought a lot of health supplements but couldn’t even enter the hospital doors.

“Sir, we’re in-laws of the Jackson family. Could you make an exception and let us in?”

Ella tried to be clever.

The security guard at the door was speechless. He had heard similar lines at least ten times a day. “We can’t make exceptions. The hospital has its rules, and please don’t make it difficult for us.”

Ella gritted her teeth and took out a bank card, trying to hand it to the guard. This is a little token of my appreciation.”

The guard pushed away the bank card and said, “Madam, please don’t bother. We can’t make exceptions.”

Ella couldn’t take it anymore. The Miller family was the wealthiest in Wrinster. She tried to speak kindly to the guard, but he didn’t appreciate it.

Ella immediately snapped, “I advise you not to be so arrogant. Do you know who I am? If you offend me, you won’t be able to survive in Wrinster.”

The guard chuckled and calmly said, “Please go ahead.”

He had worked at Prover Hospital for several years and saw all kinds of big shots.

There were quite a few arrogant people like Ella who thought they could flaunt their wealth.

He didn’t care. He had never seen anyone causing trouble at Prover Hospital because the mysterious director of the hospital was said to be powerful, and no one dared to offend him.

“Just wait and see.” Ella was so angry that she didn’t notice Olivia pulling on her sleeve. Ella turned to look at Olivia, who was signaling Ella with her eyes, asking her not to say anything, but Ella was too angry to react.

“Olivia, what’s the matter? I’ll talk to you later. I must teach this arrogant guard a lesson.”

Olivia had no choice but to speak up, “Mom, please stop.”

“What’s wrong?” Ella paused and looked in the direction Olivia was indicating, seeing Ethan and his parents.

A b i e Jackson, Ethan’s mother, witnessed Ella screaming at the hospital gate and looked at her with disdain.

A b b ie thought. They are from a small family, after all, behaving so disgracefully, shouting at a guard at the hospital gate without any manners.”

Thinking of becoming in-laws with such a person made A b i e feel uncomfortable.

When their eyes met, Ella felt embarrassed and quickly put on a smiling face, “Mrs. Jackson.”

Chapter 49

Just no saw a few passersby watching the scene, feeling embarrassed by Ella’s behavior. A i e now just wanted to pretend she didn’t know Ella.

She averted her gaze, not even looking at Ella.

Olivia felt extremely embarrassed and signaled Ethan with her eyes. Ethan understood and greeted Ella proactively.

A b b e immediately shot Ethan a stern glare.

Finally, a smile appeared on Ella’s face. “Ethan, what a coincidence.”

“Mrs. Jackson, you’re here to visit Neil, right? Look, we’re about to become family soon. Why don’t you take us in to visit Neil as well? It’s unreasonable for us to show no concern every time Mr. Neil falls ill.”

couldn’t hide her disdain when she noticed the shopping bags of supplements Ella had brought. She thought, These low-grade goods probably didn’t even cost more than 20 thousand dollars altogether. How could Ella have the audacity to bring them here as gifts?’

Olivia was still desperately signaling Ethan.

Ethan said, “Mom, Olivia is still recovering from her injuries and is weak, but she still came to visit Grandpa. Let them come with us.”

“If she’s weak, she should go home and rest. Besides, too many people will only make the air in the ward stale,” A b i e said.

Her words pierced Ella’s and Olivia’s hearts.

The engagement party was about to be held, and A i e still pretended to be unfamiliar with them and did not even respect them. She didn’t even hide her dislike of the Miller family.

A b b e was annoyed and said, "Last time, you said that Phillip was hospitalized here too. Why can't you get in?"

A b i e didn't want to get involved in their affairs, but she could see that Ella and Olivia wanted to impress Neil, hoping to solidify their position in the Jackson family in the future.

Ella was indignant but still had to smile as she replied, "Phillip's condition improved, so he was transferred to Vegate Central Hospital"

A b b i e thought, "Improved? More likely they couldn't afford the fees at Prover Hospital." But A b b i e couldn't be bothered to expose them. She thought that once Ethan and Olivia were married, Ella might even want to use the Jackson family's money to treat her husband.

Just thinking about it made A b b i e angry.

She didn't know why she would end up with being in-laws with such a family.

The heiress of the Miller family was a country bumpkin, and their adopted daughter was nothing more than eye candy. The only reason the engagement couldn't be dissolved was that Neil hadn't approved.

What made A angrier was that her son was quite fond of Olivia, openly and covertly siding

A b b i e said. "The engagement hasn't even been held yet. There's no need to rush. Mrs. Miller, you'd better take your daughter home to rest. Ethan, let's go."

It was clear A b i e wasn't going to take them in.

Ella was trembling with anger, unable to say a word. Ethan's parents' indifference had made her lose face in front of the guard.

She felt like she couldn't hold her head up anymore.

Olivia, with red eyes, looked at Ethan. Ethan felt sorry for her but didn't dare to go against his mother. He could only say, "Mom, Dad, you two go in first."

A b b i e was fuming with anger and snorted coldly, then turned and walked away. She wasn't going to bother with her useless

As they entered the hospital. A b b i e became more and more furious. "Olivia hasn't even married into our family, and she's already bewitched Ethan."

Clinton. b husband, felt a bit helpless. "He likes her. We can't intervene."

"We can't intervene?" A i e said angry.

A b b i e was annoyed by Clinton's indifferent attitude. The marriage is not sealed yet, and besides, what can the Miller family offer Ethan? They're just leeches. I can't accept Olivia marrying Ethan. We need to find a better match for him."

Clinton was puzzled. "A better match? Who?"

A i e rolled her eyes and said, "There are plenty. Someone like Jasmine would be better."

Besides, there were plenty of families in Wrinster wealthier and more influential than the Miller family.

As they chatted, they arrived at Neil's ward.

Gina came out of Neil's room, and A b b i e, who hadn't seen her before, was surprised to see a stranger walking out of Neil's room.

But although Gina was dressed plainly, her demeanor was extraordinary, and she was very beautiful. A b i e thought that it would be better for Ethan to like Gina than to like Olivia.

However, she quickly regained her senses. After all, she valued the family background of her future daughter-in-law. A b i e. thought, 'I need to find out who this lady is. But since she could visit Neil, she shouldn't be from a poor family!

Isaac came out of the room just then, and A i e asked him, "Who was that lady just now?"

Isaac replied, "Madam, she's the student who saved Neil on the roadside. She's..."

"Isaac, hurry up and fetch the laptop from my car. I need it urgently, Gabriel said.

Their conversation was interrupted by Gabriel's arrival.

Isaac didn't have time to explain further and went to get the laptop.

A b i e felt a bit uncomfortable being interrupted, but since Gabriel was the most capable person in the Jackson family, she didn't want to show her displeasure.

However, Gina had left a deep impression on her.

Chapter 49

So, that lady was Neil's savior, A b i e thought.

Ab e snapped out of it and changed the subject with ease. "Gabriel, how's dad?"

"He's out of danger," Gabriel said casually.

"That's a relief," A b b i e said, patting her chest, looking relieved. Then she waved to Clinton to enter the ward.

After a while, Isaac brought Gabriel's laptop. Gabriel instructed him, "If they ask you about Gina, don't say anything"

Isaac was surprised, feeling something was off when Gabriel suddenly appeared just now and interrupted him. 'So this was what Gabriel meant, Isaac said.

"Yes, Mr. Gabriel." Isaac had worked in the Jackson family for many years. Although he had doubts, he knew better than to ask or speculate. Just do as instructed by the employer.

Chapter 50

Gabriel lowered his eyelids.

Gina was the apple of his eye, and he couldn't tolerate others coveting her.

Moreover, Ethan's original fiancée was Gina. Gabriel didn't want Clinton and A b b e to pay attention to Gina, to avoid unnecessary trouble.

Gina found Dylan

"Neil Jackson, the patient in the VIP ward of cardiology, should be equipped with the best quality of medicines and supplies but charged with regular rates. You handle it,"

Gina said calmly.

Dylan nodded slightly. "Alright."

He hesitated for a moment before asking. The Jackson family isn't short on money. You don't need to give them special treatment. And even if you do this, they may not appreciate it."

Considering what happened with Phillip, Dylan was worried about C i n a .

Dylan couldn't bear to see Gina's kindness being taken for granted again.

But the Miller family were some of the most shameless people he had ever encountered.

"It's fine if they don't know," Gina felt that explicitly informing them would change the nature of her doing this. Gina wanted to help Neil not for money. She just wanted to do it.

"Alright." Dylan had no choice.

After giving instructions, Gina prepared to leave, and Dylan accompanied her for a while.

"Gina." Gabriel searched for Gina and finally found her. When he saw Dylan, there was a hint of coldness in his eyes.

Dylan also noticed Gabriel's gaze and felt a strange hostility.

However, out of politeness, Dylan greeted Gabriel. "Mr. Jackson."

"You know me?" Gabriel's eyes narrowed dangerously.

'Did Gina introduce me to him? Gabriel thought.

Gabriel felt a bit displeased, and his tone became colder.

Dylan sensed the awkward atmosphere and explained, "Mr. Neil stayed at Prover Hospital for a while before. I heard about you from my colleagues."

Wherever Gabriel went, he was always a topic of conversation.

Gabriel didn't respond, but his expression seemed to soften slightly. His attention returned to Gina, and he even subtly positioned himself to separate Dylan from Gina.

Dylan noticed Gabriel's body language and quietly moved aside.

"I thought you left earlier, Gabriel said.

"No, if I were leaving. I would have told you in advance, Gina replied.

Gabriel understood and smiled faintly, "So, do you want to come with me now?"

After speaking. Gabriel gave Dylan a meaningful look.

Dylan felt like Gabriel was asking him to leave and not to be a third wheel. Dylan swallowed nervously. He was under great pressure under Gabriel's presence.

He awkwardly said to Gina, "By the way, Miss Miller, Phillip and the others have been transferred to another hospital."

Gina's reaction was calm. "I see."

Then I'll leave first." Dylan turned and left.

After Dylan walked away, Gabriel couldn't help but ask, "Did you know him for a long time?"

"Quite a while," Gina answered sincerely.

Gabriel suddenly felt a bit uneasy. "Are you friends? Did you talk for a long time? Do you have common interests because he's a doctor?"

Gabriel began to wonder if it was still possible for him to study medicine now.

Gina was taken aback by Gabriel's barrage of questions.

She answered succinctly, "He used to be Phillip's attending physician.

Gabriel finally let go of his unease. "Alright, I understand.

"Did your family come to visit Neil?" Gina remembered seeing someone heading towards Neil's ward when she left.

"Yes, my brother and his wife came."

Then I won't go over. I'll visit Neil next time."

i n a didn't want to deal with the other members of the Jackson family. She was exha st ed from socializing.

“Okay,” Gabriel answered merrily.

This suited Gabriel’s intentions. If Ethan’s parents found out how excellent Gina was, they might try to take her away.

He wouldn’t allow anyone to snatch her from him.

Gabriel had never felt so uneasy, but he would remain restless until Gina became his fiancée.

“I’ll take you home,” Gabriel said.

Gina agreed.

“Wait for me. I’ll go inform Dad,” Gabriel said.

“Alright, I’ll wait for you at the hospital entrance,” Gina replied.

At the hospital entrance, Ethan comforted Olivia for a while before entering the hospital.

Ella sat in a Mercedes, feeling a headache. They couldn’t enter the hospital, so they had to give up. Now, she realized that she didn’t even have Neil’s contact information.

Ella couldn’t even call to inquire about his condition.

“Mom, don’t be angry. Let’s go home. We can give these gifts to someone else later, Olivia suggested.

The Jackson family didn’t appreciate them, but someone else surely would. Olivia was also furious.

Olivia thought, Clinton and Abbi were too much, but luckily, Ethan was on my side.

Once I married into the Jackson family, I would turn the tables and teach the two old fools a lesson.

That’s what we can do now,” Ella said.

They couldn’t just throw the gifts away. That would be a waste.

Ella was about to ask the driver to start the car when she glanced out the window and saw Gina coming out of the hospital. “How did she get in?” Ella was baffled.

Olivia followed Ella’s gaze and widened her eyes when she saw Gina.

Ella got out of the car and stopped Gina in her tracks, saying, “Hold on.”

Gina gave Ella a cold look, as if she were looking at a stranger. Somehow, Ella felt uncomfortable under Gina’s gaze.

“How did you manage to enter Prover Hospital?” Ella questioned.

Gina also had something to remind Ella.

Gina’s expression was cold as she replied, “I haven’t received the share transfer contract yet. If I can’t get it before the deadline, I will expose what Olivia has done.”

Ella was infuriated. She had just been embarrassed by the Jackson family, and now Gina threatened her. Ella held back her anger and asked again, “The contract for the share transfer has been drafted. I’ll have the lawyer contact you. But now, answer my question. How did you get in? And what were you doing inside?”

“It has nothing to do with you.” Gina’s reply was indifferent.

“Did you take the 600 million dollars and intend to use it to integrate into high society? Don’t dream of it. In high society, everyone operates as a family unit. Once you leave the Miller family, you’re nothing”
